

HEAD COACH PAT FLANNERY

In 11 years under head coach Pat Flannery, the Bison have recorded a 91-51 (.641) record in regular-season Patriot League games, and they captured the PL title in 2005.

Now in his 12th year as head coach at his alma mater, Pat Flannery took his Bucknell team to heights never before seen in the 110-year history of Bison Basketball a year ago, and he is committed to maintaining the program's status as one of the elite teams in the Patriot League, both on and off the floor.

A staple in the Lewisburg and surrounding communities, Flannery last season became the second-longest tenured head coach in program history, trailing only his own former coach, Charlie Woollum.

With 172 coaching wins at Bucknell, Flannery ranks second to the Hall of Famer Woollum (318) on the school's all-time list. He also lists No. 2 in victories among all Patriot League coaches, behind only Army's Jim Crews (308).

Flannery, who received a new four-year contract in June 2005, presides over a proud program that is well-armed for college basketball's future with a new home arena and a fourth year of recruiting with merit scholarships upcoming.

"With the leadership, excitement and respect that the Patriot League has developed since I have been the head coach at Bucknell, I believe this is a wonderful time to be in charge of this program," Flannery said. "I have a deep history and love for Bucknell University, and I feel like that feeling comes through to our student-athletes.

"The support from the university and the administration makes me feel proud of the job we have done here," Flannery added.

Those exciting changes paid dividends last season, when Bucknell finished 23-10, captured the Patriot League championship and defeated third-seeded Kansas 64-63 in the opening round of the NCAA Tournament.

"The victory was almost surreal," said Flannery after taking the Bison to the first NCAA Tournament victory in program and league history. "It is proof that good things happen to those who work hard for it. The players in this program truly earned that victory, and it's a memory that they will carry forever."

Flannery made a mark on the Bucknell men's basketball program long before returning to Lewisburg in 1994-95 as the team's head coach. As a player, he captained the 1979-80 Bison team that finished 20-7 and ushered in an era of unprecedented success at Bucknell.

Flannery remains the only player ever to lead the Bison in assists for four straight years, and he finished his career with a total of 505 assists, which was a school record at the time and still ranks third in Bucknell history.

He also tallied 779 career points and boasted a career free-throw percentage of .787. Bucknell posted a 38-16 record over Flannery's final two seasons, and he captained the team each of those years.

An emotional, competitive point guard out of Pottsville High School, Flannery was actually the first recruit signed by then-rookie Bucknell coach Charlie Woollum in 1976. It was indeed fitting, then, that when Woollum left in April 1994 to return to his alma mater, William and Mary, after a marvelous 19-year career, Flannery was selected as his successor.

After serving as an assistant coach at Bucknell, Drexel and William & Mary in the 1980s, Flannery had been the head coach at Lebanon Valley College for five years, leading that team to its first-ever national championship in 1994. The Dutchmen won the Division III title in thrilling fashion, with overtime victories in both the semifinals (93-83 over Wittenberg) and the championship game (66-59 over New York University). The title game win by the Dutchmen capped a 28-4 season in Flannery's fifth year as head coach at the Eastern Pennsylvania school, which recently celebrated the 10th anniversary of that national crown.

In his first year at Lebanon Valley, Flannery guided the Dutchmen to a 17-9 mark, the program's first winning season in 18 years, and proceeded to record five consecutive winning seasons. His 1992-93 team reached the second round of the NCAA Tournament, before his 1993-94 team won the title. In five years at Lebanon Valley, Flannery compiled an overall record of 95-44 (.683) and earned the 1994 Division III Coach-of-the-Year Award from the National Association of Basketball Coaches.

In October 2005 Flannery was inducted into the Lebanon Valley Athletics Hall of Fame, and coincidentally he went in alongside Mike Rhoades, the team captain of the national championship team and currently the head coach at Randolph-Macon College.

Flannery's appointment as Bucknell's 19th men's basketball head coach in 1994 capped a tumultuous two-month stretch. His wife, Patti, gave birth to the couple's first son, Ryan, in between the national championship and Flannery's hiring at Bucknell. The couple had their second child, Jesse, nine years ago.

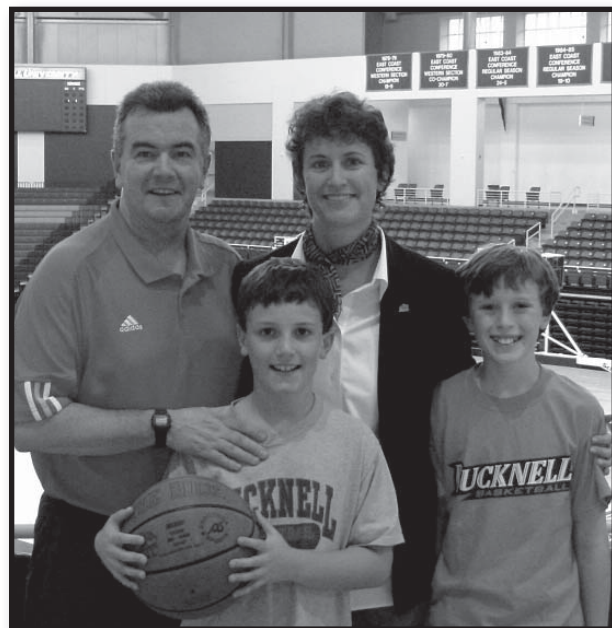

"At the time of my hiring, I was coming off two of the biggest things in my life," Flannery said. "If it wasn't my alma mater, and wasn't a school with this kind of philosophy, I wouldn't have moved. The philosophy of the Patriot League is the philosophy of my coaching. I always wanted a place that was academically oriented. I was very happy (at Lebanon Valley), but the people here got me excited.

In his 11 seasons as coach at his alma mater, Flannery and the Bison program have lived up to those high expectations. He has created an atmosphere in which his players have been successful and he is again giving back to the school that gave him an opportunity in 1976.

After last season's 23-10 mark (10-4 Patriot League), his career record now stands at 267-189 (.586) overall and 172-146 (.541) at Bucknell.

Flannery's Bison squads have won nearly two-thirds of their Patriot League contests (91-51) over the last 11 seasons.

Flannery began his coaching career at Bucknell in 1994-95 by guiding the Bison to an 11-3 final league mark and earning Patriot

ASSISTANT COACHING CAREER

1981-83 Graduate assistant coach, Bucknell

 1986-87 Assistant coach, William & Mary
 1987-89 Assistant coach, Drexel

League Coach of the Year honors. He was the first Patriot League coach to earn such honors in his opening season with a program. The award was especially sweet for Flannery, considering the Bison had opened the year 0-8, before winning 13 of their final 19 games to collect a share of the regular season title.

In 1995-96, Bucknell was again solid in league play, going 8-4 in Patriot games, and finishing the season with an overall record of 17-11. Included in those 17 wins was one of the school's biggest victories of all time, when the Bison knocked off Alabama, 72-64, at the Cessna Holiday Classic at Wichita State.

Flannery earned Patriot League Coach of the Year honors for the second time in 1996-97, after directing his squad to an 18-11 overall record, a 9-3 league mark and a berth in the league championship game. Non-league victories at Princeton and Air Force, plus a pair of wins over defending PL champ Colgate were but a few of the highlights from that magnificent campaign. Bucknell was one of just four schools (joining California, Indiana and North Carolina) to knock off Princeton in 1996-97.

In 1997-98, Bucknell slipped to 13-15 overall, due in large part to a grueling non-league schedule that included games against Iowa, Penn State, Princeton and Pittsburgh. Within the league, the Bison were again solid at 8-4.

His 1998-99 team started slowly, but turned it on down the stretch, winning 13 of its last 16 games before falling to Lafayette in the Patriot League championship game, 67-63. The Bison were 9-3 in the conference during the regular season.

The 2003-04 squad featured one of the youngest lineups in school history with three freshmen and two sophomores starting, but the Bison steadily improved throughout the course of the season and finished with a 9-5 league record. Bucknell eliminated three-time defending PL champion Holy Cross in the opening round of the conference tournament and advanced as far as the semifinals for the 11th time in 14 seasons.

Last year they made it 12 out of 15 after knocking out Lafayette and American in the first two rounds of the tournament at Sojka Pavilion, then the Bison won 61-57 at Holy Cross for their first league title of any kind since 1989.

In addition to his outstanding teams, Flannery has tutored many standout individuals. He has coached a First Team All-Patriot League player in 10 of his first 11 years at Bucknell, and he helped stars J.R. Holden, Bryan Bailey and Boakai Lalugba land professional playing opportunities overseas.

Flannery is very well respected by both his players and his peers in the coaching profession. He was selected to speak at the National Association of Basketball Coaches annual convention in Seattle, Wash., in 1995, held in conjunction with the NCAA Division I Final Four festivities.

His teams have been actively involved in Coaches Versus Cancer, a program sponsored by the NABC and the American Cancer Society which raises money for cancer research, education, and patient services. The Bison, in fact, played in the CVC Classic for the first time last season at Syracuse's Carrier Dome.

Under Flannery, the Bison have played a very active role in the community. The team has volunteered its time to Central Pennsylvania youth basketball organizations, the Donald Heiter Community Center in Lewisburg and the Janet Weis Children's Hospital at Geisinger Medical Center.

In January 2003, Flannery for the second time took his team to his hometown of Pottsville to play at historic Martz Hall. The Bison played Penn there in 1997, and in 2003 hosted Niagara on the floor where Flannery played his prep ball. Dubbed the Kids Classic, the game raised funds for youth basketball in the Pottsville area.

Flannery has also taken three Bucknell teams on summer overseas tours. In 2000 the team visited Italy and Croatia, in 1996 Bucknell went to Denmark and Sweden, and in 2005 the squad toured Ireland and England.

Pat Flannery ranks second on Bucknell's all-time list of coaching victories. He trails only his own former college coach, Charlie Woollum.

THE COACHING STAFF

ASSISTANT COACH

Now in his third season at Bucknell and his eighth as a member of the Patriot League coaching ranks, Nathan Davis returns to Pat Flannery's staff in 2005-06.

Davis came to Lewisburg prior to the 2003-04 season armed with a deep working knowledge of the Patriot League, having served as an assistant coach at Navy for the previous five years. While in Annapolis he served as head coach Don DeVoe's chief western recruiter, landing numerous top prospects from that region. Davis helped guide the Midshipmen to Patriot League championship game appearances in 2000 and 2001, and he served as director of the Navy Basketball Camps.

A native of Bethesda, Md., Davis graduated in 1997 from Randolph-Macon College with majors in history and sociology. He earned four varsity letters in basketball and served as team co-captain in both his junior and senior years. A two-time all-conference selection, Davis scored 983 career points and was one of only five players in school history to have more than 500 career rebounds, 300 career assists and 100 career steals. He helped the Yellow Jackets to the 1996 NCAA Division III Tournament.

After serving as a student assistant coach while completing his degree at Randolph-Macon in 1996-97, Davis spent one year as an assistant coach at Emory and Henry College before moving on to the U.S. Naval Academy.

Davis and his wife, Miki, reside in Lewisburg.

BRYAN
ASSISTANT COACH

Bryan Goodman, a 1996 graduate of Barat College, is in his sixth season as an assistant coach with the Bison basketball squad, making him one of the longest tenured assistants in the Patriot League.

Goodman works extensively with the offense, player development and recruiting. He assists in the area of university relations by working closely with other offices and contacts on campus, and he oversees the team's academic affairs program.

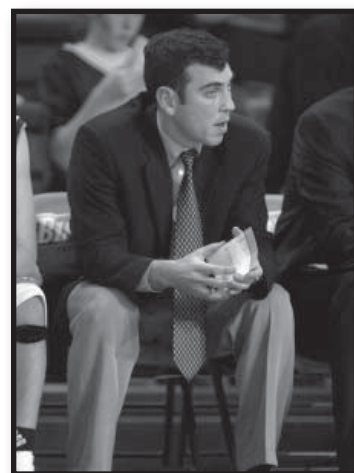

This summer, Goodman had the opportunity to work with Jay Wright's Team USA coaching staff at the World University Games in Izmir, Turkey. The American team won the tournament, and Goodman received a gold medal for his hard work.

Goodman, who also earned a master's degree in history from DePaul University, came to Bucknell following two seasons as an assistant at Susquehanna University, just a short drive south of Bucknell. His responsibilities there included recruiting, scouting, floor and game coaching and organizing the team's tape exchange.

Prior to his stint with the Crusaders, Goodman served as an assistant on the staff at Barat for two years. While at the Lake Forest, Ill., institution he was involved in all facets of the Bulldogs' program.

A native of Choctaw, Okla., he lettered four times as a point guard for Barat and led the team in assists and steals. He served as the team's captain as both a junior and senior, and was an Academic All-America selection in 1996.

Goodman is married to the former Amy Miller, a 1995 Bucknell graduate who works in the Office of Admissions. The couple resides in Lewisburg.

MARK PROSSER

ASSISTANT COACH

Mark Prosser returns to the Bucknell bench for his third season as an assistant coach under Pat Flannery.

A 2002 graduate of Marist College, Prosser came to Bucknell prior to the 2003-04 season from Wofford College, where he spent a year working as an assistant under head coach Mike Young. Prosser was involved in all aspects of coaching, including scouting, prep recruiting and film breakdown.

After earning Street & Smith's honorable mention All-America honors in his final year at Lawrenceville Prep, Prosser earned a basketball scholarship at Marist. A knee injury cut short his playing career, but he remained with the program in a student assistant coach capacity under Dave Magarity.

The son of Wake Forest head coach Skip Prosser, the Wheeling, W.Va., native has worked numerous basketball camps, including the Five Star Camp in Pittsburgh and camps at Xavier, Wake Forest, North Carolina and Wofford.

FACULTY SIDELINE PROGRAM

One of the special programs that Bucknell offers in order to enhance the student-athlete's overall experience at the university is the Sideline Coaches Program. The program is a truly unique initiative in Division I college athletics, and it includes the invitation of a member of the faculty, administration, staff or community by one of the 27 varsity teams.

The participant has the opportunity to discuss the overall program with the respective coaching staff, including practice preparation and strategy for the upcoming contest. The sideline coach will attend a practice session where he/she will be introduced to the team and gain a truly unique insight into the relationships that exist between player-coach and player-player. In addition, the practice session allows the participant to learn coaching techniques, strategy, terminology and the athletes' true enthusiasm for the sport.

The participant will then attend the actual intercollegiate contest itself and be a part of the total event from pre-contest to post-contest, through timeout discussions and halftime teaching-learning methodology.

The purpose of the Sideline Coaches Program is to foster a better understanding by the faculty and administration of the roles played by coaches and athletes in the university's competitive intercollegiate athletic arena.

Following are some testimonials from Bucknell faculty and staff who have participated in the Sideline Coaches Program:

"The essence of what we faculty at Bucknell do is teaching undergraduate students. Obviously, teaching takes place in and outside the classroom. What better way to get to know our students outside the classroom than to connect with them on their fields of competition, where so much energy, emotion and talent is expended. To have the opportunity to share those experiences with student-athletes is rare for many faculty at other institutions, but I think it is so much a part of the fabric of being a member of the Bucknell community. It is one of those things that distinguish us as faculty and as an institution."

Tim Sweeney
Professor of Management (Retired)

"The most valuable part of the Sideline Coaches Program to me is the ability to experience an aspect of my student's athletic life usually invisible to the casual observer, whether it is a practice session or the coach's huddle. These are the moments that really allow me to understand my students' commitment to the team, and the overall role of athletics in their life at Bucknell."

Alex Richman
Assistant Professor of Mathematics

"I have been a sideline coach for five different teams in the four years that I have been associated with this program. In all of these experiences, one theme remains clear: Bucknell's student-athletes are deeply committed to both their academic studies and their sport. I have seen student-athletes leaving practices not talking about what they just focused on for the past hour or two, but talking about the exam they need to study for or the group project meeting they need to attend. It is refreshing to be part of an athletic program that has its priorities in place."

J.R. HOLDEN STARS IN RUSSIA

Like several Bison basketball players that have come before and after him, J.R. Holden '98 continued his playing career overseas after graduating from Bucknell. Holden's success, which culminated this year in an amazing story that made worldwide headlines, puts him in a class by himself, however.

After stints with teams in Latvia, Belgium and Greece, Holden found a home with Russian powerhouse CSKA Moscow, also known as the "Red Army" team. Holden led CSKA to two straight Russian titles and became a star in a foreign land. So much so that in 2003, with the backing of local and club officials and ultimately by a decree from President Vladimir Putin, Holden became a Russian citizen.

This summer he was the starting point guard for Team Russia at the European Championships. He averaged 12 ppg, but the Russians, hampered by an injury to center Andrei Kirilenko of the Utah Jazz, finished in eighth place.

The incredible story of Holden as a Russian citizen was featured in publications such as Sports Illustrated and USA Today.

At Bucknell Holden was a two-time team captain and All-Patriot Leaguer. He led the Bison to the 1997 PL Championship Game and ranks 10th on the all-time scoring list with 1,327 points.

COMMUNITY & ALUMNI RELATIONS

BISON GIVE BACK TO THE LEWISBURG COMMUNITY

Head coach Pat Flannery believes very strongly in lending a helping hand to those less fortunate, and he and his staff have kept the Bison basketball team extremely active in the community over the past decade. Whether it's visiting sick children at a local hospital, raising money for the September 11 disaster relief fund, or running clinics for local youths, the Bucknell basketball program is proud to return the favor for the fantastic support the Lewisburg community has shown the Bison through the years.

The team has made it a tradition to pay a Halloween visit to the Janet Weis Children's Hospital at the Geisinger Medical Center in Danville, Pa., each fall. The coaching staff and a host of Bison players make the trip to the hospital to lift the spirits of the children they spend time with. For the players, the experience is both eye-opening and gratifying.

In addition to the hospital, the Bucknell basketball team spends time with the children at the local elementary and middle schools, and at the Heiter Community Center in Lewisburg. Coach Flannery also invites youth basketball teams from all over the region to come to Sojka Pavilion and "strut their stuff" for the crowd during halftimes of the Bucknell games. Bison players and coaches have also served Thanksgiving meals at the Heiter Center in recent years.

In the wake of the horrific attacks on New York City, Washington, D.C. and Western Pennsylvania, the team sold T-shirts that featured the Bucknell Basketball insignia and the American flag. The proceeds totaled $830, all of which was donated to the United Way September 11 Fund.

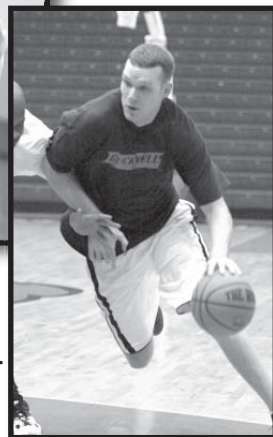

Flannery and his staff also place great emphasis on alumni relations, keeping former Bison players in the Bucknell Basketball family. The annual summer golf tournament is one of several events geared toward alums and supporters of the program. This past summer, more than 100 golfers participated in the event. A fall alumni family weekend and an annual alumni game are also regular functions.
